Principal's Message

CHOOSE your associates and your friends with care. You are a part of all you meet. Make that environment constructively helpful. It costs much to be a friend or to have a friend. You will not and can not have many. Fortunate will you be to have a few who are absolutely faithful. From this inner circle choose the wisest for your counselors. Seek proper advice on all important matters, and heed it.

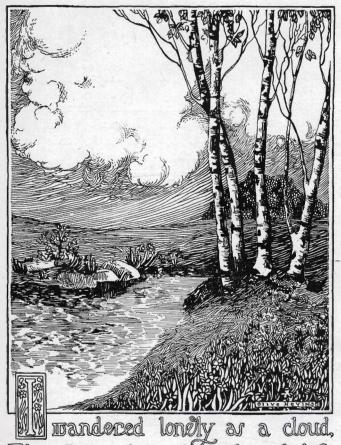

Choose your work or vocation wisely. Select work which you can do and do well, and which you will enjoy. If you do not find happiness in your work, you will not find it anywhere, although you must realize there are unpleasant things to be met in every line of endeavor. Take time now to prepare for the job which awaits you. Keep up with your calling. Every day brings new developments. Anticipate tomorrow's needs if you can, and your success will be assured.

Choose your time for play as well as for work and study. We Americans do not play enough. Everyone should have a vocation, an avocation, and a vacatiom. Let all three be wholesome. Leisure hours need not be idle or destructive. Make them helpful.

Enjoy your youth while you may. Girlhood and boyhood come but once. Do not be in a hurry to establish a home. Many marry too young. Home is the best and happiest place in the world, but the business of home-making and home-keeping is nevertheless a serious one. Make your decisions carefully.

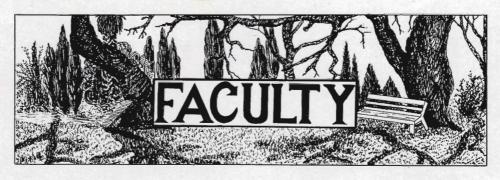

Wise counsel and careful choosing as to your friends, your vocation, your avocation, your study, and your home will contribute much to your happiness and your success. May both be yours in abundance!

That floats along o'er vale and hil.
That floats along o'er vale and hil.
Then all at once I saw a crowd, so
A host of golden daffodils:
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Dordsworth.

Service

May service be the measure of our day,

The sesame that opes the closesealed heart!

Without its summons, who would play his part

Amidst the gloom and doubt that bars the way?

For these are times to try men's souls and sway

The bravest barterer in Life's troubled mart.

We stare about and scarce dare make a start;

Standards seem lost, and we like sheep astray.

Then Service like a beckoning angel holds

Her forward-pointing finger to our gaze.

Before our eyes a vision fair unfolds: A path lures sweetly on through all the maze:

And on we tread sharing creation's plan

To make this earth a better home for man.

To the Class of 1925

Boundless the dreams of nineteen twenty-five:

Some upon riches place their heart's desire:

Others like Orpheus love the tuneful lyre,

While some for glory fondly hope and strive

By writing poetry that will survive.

The laws of state kindle some souls with fire:

In science one would fain become a sire—

Will all these luring fancies ever thrive?

The bird of night cries bitterly, "Ah no."

For paths by Fate contrived change course each day,

Yet lead to pinnacles crowned oft with joy

When Life has taught each yearning heart to know

That only power to make one's brothers gay

Can yield one happiness without alloy.
